

Home Inspection Pricing...

I am definitely not the lowest cost inspection company out there, nor am I the most expensive. If you are trying to hire a home inspector based on price alone, you are making a mistake. Saving a few dollars on your inspection and going with the lowest price inspector will likely get you a poorly qualified or new inspector just starting out in the industry.

I have made a tremendous investment in testing equipment, software and education to provide you with the best possible evaluation of the home you are buying.

My inspection rates are very fair, and I believe they are the best value around. Please call or e-mail us for a price quote. Just keep in mind that you are not comparing apples to apples when it comes to different home inspectors, and that there is a large range in expertise and knowledge in the industry. Some of the biggest complaints I hear are "why didn't my inspector catch that when I bought the home", and "the inspector missed a bunch of things on my previous house purchase". Most of the inspections I get are through referrals, and I intend to keep it that way.
